BEGIN HEARING FOR OPPONENTS OF LIQUOR LAW

Start Fight for Manufacture of 2.75 Per Cent Beer

DENOUNCE LAW

Leader Says Present Form Not Enforceable. Most Flouted of Any Measure Ever Passed

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Apr. 21.—Opponents of modification of liquor laws were given the first word today by the House judiciary committee beginning hearings on proposals to permit the manufacture and sale of 2.75 pe rcent beer under the Eighteen Amendment. Julian Godman, Boston leader of proponents, asserted the most intelligent and unbiased men believed the Volstead Act in its present form "was not enforceable." No law was ever written into the statutes of the nation, he said that "had been so universally scorned and flouted by many of the very legislators who passed it. The only people who benefit by leaving the law as it is are those who are making money out of it and it is these people who under a cloak of morality are its most ardent supporters."

Metropolitan Staff Meeting Saturday

The first staff meeting of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company of the Middlesboro district was held Saturday, April 19, in their new office rooms in the Nicholson building on Cumberland avenue.

The meeting was an interesting and enthusiastic one. W. R. Estep, manager of the district, addressed the staff giving an outline of the work done in this field the last year, when this section was only a sub-district, and laid plans before the staff to make the Middlesboro district one of the leading in the whole country in production this year. The general assistant manager, as well as the agents, pledged their support and co-operation in making the district a leading one.

The meeting adjourned at twelve o'clock for lunch which was prepared for the entire staff at the Cumberland hotel. A short session was held in the afternoon to take up the unfinished business.

GOLFERS MAKE RESERVATIONS

Players From All Over State Coming to Tournament Last of June

Several reservations have been made at the Cumberland hotel by golfers throughout the state who will attend the Kentucky state tournament here beginning June 25.

Some Lexington golfers were here Saturday who inspected the golf course and pronounced it in fine shape for the annual state meet. They declared that they would return home with the glad tidings and that a number of players from their vicinity would be here for the tourney. Mr. Baker, prominent business man of Winchester, was here today. He and Col. F. P. Scales played over the course this afternoon.

"The Middlesboro golf club course is in excellent condition," Col. Scales, now state president, announces. "Golfers of Kentucky will be most pleasantly surprised at the excellent condition of the greens. They are in almost perfect condition now and I have ever reason to believe that they will be made even better before the tournament, if this is possible."

High Winds Make Hat Chasing Most Popular Diversion

Hat chasing has been a popular outdoor sport here today and yesterday. The recreation is highly amusing—to all except the person directly engaged in it. Staid men and women, girls and boys may be seen during most any hard wind following the head-piece that has a habit of moving just before the fingers close around it.

The hard winds, doubtless carried over from the March stock, have been causing a great deal of annoyance. Awnings have been damaged at some of the stores, these being the only harmful results reported.

One public service rendered by the strong winds has been the sweeping of the streets and sidewalks without cost to the city or abutting property owners. This goes to prove that old adage that "it is an ill wind that blows no good."

Immigration Bill Arouses Ire of Japanese People

Boycott On All California Goods Is Reprisal

MASS MEETING

American Churches Ask Senate to Reconsider Jap Exclusion Bill Just Passed

By Associated Press.

TOKIO, Apr. 21.—The Japanese printing association at a general meeting today voted to place a boycott on all goods from California.

This was the first reprisal to be noted in connection with passage by the United States senate of an immigration bill barring persons ineligible to citizenship from entrance into that country. The senate's action aroused much public feeling here.

Labor elements, hardest hit by the American ruling, are preparing demonstrations against the exclusion. The Japanese federation of labor and the government workmen's association are planning joint mass meetings in both Tokio and Osaka at which the American immigration bill will be considered.

Japanese, however, are not the only protestants. The American Association of Japan, the American Merchants' Association of Tokio and all American members of the American society all are framing telegrams to be sent to the American state department, representing the situation as serious and urging reconsideration of the exclusion measure.

In addition to commercial representatives here of leading American business concerns and banks are said to be cabling their home organizations along the same lines.

WASHINGTON, Apr. 21.—The Federal Council of Churches yesterday asked the senate and house to reconsider the Japanese exclusion section of the immigration bill and to join with the executive department of the government in solving the problem "in a more satisfactory way."

"To sum up their opinion," said a statement issued by the Council, "the churches believe that congress is meeting the situation in a wrong way and that the same result may be obtained in a friendly way that would not hurt the self-respect of Japan or interfere with the friendship that has long existed between the two nations.

National Organization to Discuss Improved Mining Methods and Co-operation

WASHINGTON, Apr. 21.—Advancement of the interests of the public, through improved mining methods and an increasing measure of cooperation, is the objective of the National Coal Association, according to Harry L. Gandy, Executive Secretary, who today made public plans for the Seventh Annual Meeting of the Association. The meeting will be held in Cincinnati, May 14-16. Present indications are that more than 1500 operators, representing 25 states, will be present.

Melville E. Stone, of New York, organizer, formerly general manager and now counselor of the Associated Press, will adress the delegates in attendance. Samuel C. Crowell, of Philadelphia, president of the National Retail Coal Merchants' Association, will talk about "Our Customers." Arrangements are being made for a number of other speakers of national reputation.

The plans and program of the meeting are in charge of a committee composed of W. E. E. Koepler, Bluefield, W. V.; P. H. Penna, Terre Haute, Ind.; F. S. Love, Pittsburgh, Pa.; W. J. Sampson, Youngstown, Ohio; W. H. Cunningham, Huntington, W. Va.; C. E. Bockus, New York and W. L. A. Johnson, Kansas City, Mo.

NO BIDS YET ON STREET WORK

Time Limit, Up Tomorrow, Will Be Extended by City

No bids for the new street improvement work have been received, according to Commissioner J. E. Evans. The time limit as specified in the advertising is tomorrow at 10 a. m. though the time will doubtless be extended.

A meeting of the commissioners will be held tomorrow morning at which time the matter of time extension will be discussed. It is not likely that the time will be closed and the bids opened before Friday or Saturday, they say, on account of the absence of Mayor J. H. Keeney from the city. He is expected to return Friday.

The time limit fixed in the advertising for bids was considered rather short as many contractors prefer to look over the scene of prospective improvements before submitting bids.

Child Welfare to Arouse Country in May Day Event

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Apr. 21.—May Day is to be made the occasion for a coordinated effort by the various organizations interested in the welfare of Americal children. President Coolidge has lent his indorsement and assistance to the project in a letter to Secretary Hoover who, as president of the American Child Health Association, presented the matter to him in a letter that makes some startling statements concerning child life in this country.

"With all the enlightenment and all the prosperity of our great people" says Mr. Hoover, "we find that in five other nations there is a lower death rate among infants; we find in 16 other nations a lower rate of fatality amongst mothers at childbirth. The great national draft indicated that something like 80 per cent of the men examined were deficient in some particular or another."

While the greater part of America's 35,000,000 children are objects of the utmost solicitude on the part of parents, Mr. Hoover points out that no amount of individual solicitude can correct the dangers to which children are in many instances subjected by failure of community safeguards. "We find" he says, "in many of our communities impure sources of water and impure supplies of milk; in others we find inadequate provision for health inspection and playgrounds; we find archaic systems and incompetent administration of public health in many cities and towns, and we still have large numbers of children at work in factories when they should be in school."

It is to awaken community and national thought and secure concentrated effort on child welfare that May Day, traditionally and peculiarly children's day, is proposed for the purpose, and President Coolidge has given it his unqualified support. "The tremendous growth of urban population," the President says in his letter to Mr. Hoover, "constantly presents new problems of child life and health. These problems should be met by action within each community itself."

Governors of states, commissioners of health and education, mayors of cities, various organizations, the press, the motion picture industry, radio broadcasting and all other suitable agencies have been asked to join in stimulating the observance of May Day as a "Day of Child Welfare."

Looks for International Radio Relay League Soon

HARTFORD, Conn., Apr. . Organization of the radio amateurs of the world has taken on big strides since the return recently of Hiram Percy Maxim, famous inventor and president of the American Radio Relay League.

According to Maxim, the International Amateur Relay League is an assurance possibility for the near future. Plans for its organization were completed at the European amateur conference, from which he returned.

For some time amateur radio enthusiasts, transmitting on low wavelengths, have been hearing one another come in to A. R. R. L. headquarters here almost daily of unique long distance reception experienced by American and foreign amateurs. Japan, Australia, the Philippines, England, France, other European countries, South America—in fact, almost all points of the globe are reporting great progress in amateur activities.

From Australia comes the offer of a genuine Australian boomerang, representing two-way communication, to the American or Canadian amateur who will be first to establish definite two-way radio communication on amateur wavelengths between New Zealand or Australia and North America.

HIRAM PERCY MAXIM ....

It is a sign of the unofficial interest of amateurs, which Maxim and others prominent in amateur radio are trying to organize throughout the world.

ANSWERS ANTI-BOND ARGUMENTS

It seems to me that the people of our State will decide more wisely on the Bond Issue question if the principal "points" are greatly reduced and the argument simplified.

The chief argument of those of us who favor the Bond Issue is that we believe that better education and to the progress of Kentucky and that Kentucky, therefore should use her good credit in order to borrow and to obtain these advantages more quickly than she could possibly obtain through expenditure from current revenue derived from annual taxes.

It seems to me that the chief anti-bond issue arguments are these:

1—That the Bond Issue is not necessary because current revenue is ample to meet the necessities.

2—That current revenue is not ample and therefore farms may have to be mortgaged.

3—That interest is non-productive and increases the cost.

4—That Kentucky can not spend large sums of construction without graft.

5—That the pro-bond forces are evil forces backed by a large slush fund.

In answer, may I suggest the following:

1 and 2—It would clear the atmosphere and make the argument more helpful to the people of Kentucky if the Anti-Bond Issue people would make up their minds whether or not current revenue is ample—and I think, in all fairness, they should do that, because at present they are arguing from both horns of a dilemma of their own making.

3—Corporations in the United States organized for profit—and sometimes accused of making too much—continue to issue interest bearing bonds, having outstanding at present about $70,000,000,000.

4—The largest single piece of construction by Kentucky, I believe, the building of our beautiful Capitol, was carried through without graft. The very magnitude of an undertaking whenever the public attention is centered upon a public expenditure, there is less waste instead of more.

5—I do not believe that this point is really believed in by most of the anti-bond people, yet it has been brought forward a number of times in the press. These with whom I have come most in contact in this work are certainly forces for good in the State and not evil, and I can certainly say that there is not in existence to my knowledge any slush fund, large or small. As a matter of fact, we are much in need of funds to meet the modest expenses of our secretary's office.—By Kentucky Good Roads Association.

THE NEW ATTORNEY GENERAL'S TASK

The first task of the new attorney general will to to wage a fight for a better enforcement of the prohibition laws, according to a recent editorial in the Kansas City Star. In describing how flagrantly the law has been violated the Star writes:

"It did not need the evidence disclosed before the senate committee investigating the department of justice to convince he country that there has been laxity in the enforcement of the prohibitory laws. There is local evidence city. That breweries are running illegally in many places has been demonstrated by unanswerable evidence the more or less open sale of their product over bars.

"This is a traffic that can not be carried on in any large way without the knowledge of government agents without 'protection,' in short. Evidence has been produced before the senate committee to show there has been such 'protection' in Chicago. In that city, it was testified, cases against offending breweries prepared by the local prohibition authorities for action by the department of justice were dropped by that department or were not pressed. Political influences, it was testified, were brought to bear to head off prosecutions. In one case, it was alleged the department of justice took the extraordinary course of 'fining' a brewery $15,000 without taking the case to the courts.

"The disclosures can not but be a great shock to the country. Let the American people become convinced the administration of justice is corrupt and they will speedily lose all faith in the institution of government itself. Government must look to it; it must restore public confidence in an administration that is peculiarly the keystone of the whole governmental structure. Where justice fails democracy fails, government fails, nothing is left to uphold the fabric.

A step to that end now has been taken. With the appointment of a new attorney general the country will look for a thorough house cleaning in the department ever which he presides. Doubtless Mr. Stone will see the necessity of some sweeping changes in the personnel of the department all those channels through which political and other influence have been brought to block prosecutions must be stopped up. The rusts must go. If the government is to look for respect for law from the people it owes to itself to

Hal Cochran's DAILY POEM

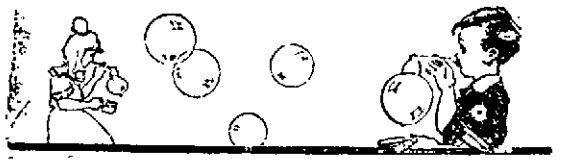
WHEN you were a kid (I'll admit that I did) you used to blow bubbles in air. There once was the day when you'd stop in your play to watch them go floating up there.

Each bubble a dream and a bright color scheme as it floated quite gently away. And now the thought cheers as you've grown up in years, for still, you blow bubbles today.

The plans that you make, even though they may break, are bubbles that grow in your mind. Your thoughts blow them up out of creation's cup, and then many burst, you will find.

Man's prowess and thought, as in life's march he's caught, is what takes him up to the top. It keeps you a-going, when always you're knowing that failure will come if you stop.

So keep blowing bubbles and make it your play; you're only as old as you feel. And one of these days you'll admit that it pays—some bubble will last and be real.



FABLES ON HEALTH

Mr. Mann of Anytown thought of clothes in terms of bills that inevitably followed their purchase. He knew that Mrs. Mann was a bit more economical than most women, and could take a last year's dress and make it over with a few turns and twists. As for himself he wasn't particularly interested in the subject.

Certainly he never thought of the health end of clothes.

Ideal apparel is that which permits circulation of air about the body. Health should never be sacrificed to style.

Evaporation of body moisture is greatly aided by clothing that absorbs it and thus keeps the body from chilling.

Persons working in offices should wear comparatively light clothes but should keep an overcoat on hand so that the change in temperature can be safely faced.

Clothing worn close to the skin should be changed frequently at least twice a week or oftener, if necessary.

"Now where are we going?" asked Nick.

"What Three Bears?" asked Nancy.

"Why, the idea! Goldielocks' three bears, of course!"

The Twins were too much excited to say another word, and the little car sped on and on and on over seven bridges and through seven tunnels and came at last to the forest where the bears lived.

Then they all got out and tapped on the front door.

But nobody was at home. The door was open a crack, so they all went in.

There stood three chairs, one for the papa bear, one for the mama bear and one for little Johnny bear. The last had the bottom out of it where Goldielocks had sat it out. It had never been fixed.

And on the dining room table sat three bowls. But there was no soup in any of them!

And upstairs were three beds of different sizes—all mussed up as though they hadn't been made or aired for ages.

"Well, I declare!" said Mister Muggs. "This doesn't look like much of a place. No wonder they wouldn't stay at home with things in such a mess!"

"Oh, I've got a plan!" cried Nancy. "Let's fix them up. I'll hunt clean sheets and pillow cases and make the beds and sweep the rooms and then I'll go down to the kitchen and cook some soup."

"And I'll go out and get my tools in the automobile and mend little Johnny Bear's chair," said Mister Muggs. "And Nick can help."

Nancy found an apron and dust cap and put them on, and set to work.

And then she went downstairs and found some things in the grocery cupboard and soon such good smells were coming out of the kitchen that Nick and Mister Muggs could scarcely work.

Pretty soon they heard a growly voice outside say, "Woof! Woof! I smell something gorgeous."

And a middling-sized voice said, "I smell something wonderful."

And a teeny, tiny voice said, "I smell something grand!"

And in walked the three bears.

"Oh, there's that girl that spoiled our things," cried papa bear.

"No, it isn't said the mama bear. "Where are your eyes?"

"And look, my chair's fixed," cried Johnny.

"And dinner's cooked! Hooray!"

"And you ought to see your upstairs," said Nancy with pride. "The work's all done."

"You'll have to stay and we'll have a party," growled papa bear, politely. "I'm glad to learn that all little girls are not selfish."

The Last Conquerer

Victorious men of earth, no more
Proclaim how wide your empires are;
Though you in every clime adore
And your triumphs reaches as far
As night or day,
Yet you, proud monarchs, must obey,
And mingle with forgotten ashes, when
Death calls ye to the crowd of common men.
Devouring Famine, Plague, and War,
Each able to undo mankind,
Death's servile emissaries are;
Nor to those alone confined,
He hath at will
More quaint and subtle ways to kill;
A smile or kiss, as he will use the art,
Shall have the cunning skill to break a heart.

"My China Doll" Is Big Extravaganza

"My China Doll" extravaganza is a fittin gname for "My China Doll", the season's smartest musical novelty, coming to the Manring Theatre Monday, April 28th. It is unbelievably extravagant in everything in stage settings, scenery and costumes, rich and lovely and varied to a bewildering degree; in delightful melodies and charming songs; in fascinating electrical effects and in talent. The picture presented by the players in the several musical numbers and acts surpass anything in modern stagedom in abundance and beauty.

Chinatown, the Land of Story Books, the Land of Music, the Land of Flowers and the Wedding scene are examples of the remarkable advance the exacting public have demanded of the showman and his willingness to cope with their desire. Youth, music, pretty thoughts and lovely things are required today and "My China Doll" has all of these.

Barbara Bronell, who is starring in thi snovel offering, is a bewitching little creature who sings, dances and gavorts about here, there and everywhere and is backed up with an able company and ballet.

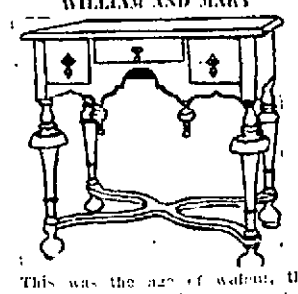
PERIOD FURNITURE
WILLIAM AND MARY



This was the age of walnut, the latter part of the 17th century, when utility became a factor above ornament. Chairs cabinets, highboys, useful tables and other domestic furniture came into use. The Dutch influence prevailed. Veneering became popular and Dutch inlaying was used everywhere. Turned legs, curved under-framing and arched tops of cabinets and frames were characteristics of this period.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

DAILY MENU FOR THE STOUT AND THIN

Lose Weight

One-half cup stewed rhubarb, 3 ounces boiled calves tongue, 1-2 cup diced beets with 1 tablespoon orange juice, 2 "hot-dogs," 2 tablespoons minced Bermuda onion, 1 cup tenminute cabbage, 1 tomato sliced on 2 ounces watercress, 2 tablespoons lemon jelly with 1 tablespoon "diet whipped cream," 2 thin crisp slices gluten toast, 1 bran roll, 2 thin slices gluten bread, 1 pint skimmed milk.

Total calories, 969. Protein, 158; fat, 231; carbohydrate, 577. Iron, .0196 gram.

This is an excellent menu for a warm spring day. As the weather grows warmer less food is needed and ever the diet menu should be reduced.

Roast the wienerwurst in the roaster in the oven. Wash well and cut a thin slice from each end of each wiener. Put in the roaster, without water, and roast about 15 minutes in a hot oven. Serve with Worcestershire sauce and minced Bermuda onion.

The "diet whipped cream" is nothing but the white of one egg beaten until stiff and dry with a whisk. Two to four tablespoons of sugar are beaten into the white and one-half teaspoon of vanilla is used for flavoring. This rule will serve six "normal" persons.

Gain Weight

One-half cup stewed rhubarb, 1 cup rolled oats with 6 dates, 1 soft boiled egg, 3 ounces boiled calves tongue, 2 rice croquettes, 1-2 cup diced beets with 2 tablespoons orange sauce, 1 cup cream of bean soup, 2 "hot-dogs," 2 tablespoons mashed potatoes, 2 tablespoons minced Bermuda onion, 1 cup ten-minute cabbage, 1 tomato sliced on two ounces watercress with 2 tablespoons French dressing, 2 tablespoons lemon jelly with 2 tablespoons diet whipped cream and 2 tablespoons mincer nuts, 1 tablespoons fig pudding with 2 tablespoons whipped cream with 2 toasted cornmeal muffins, 2 bran muffins, 2 hog rolls, 1 tablespoons butter, 1 dessertspoon sugar, 1-4 cup icream, 1 pint while milk.

Total calories, 3861. Protein, 392; fat, 1379; carbohydrate, 2135. Iron, .0199 gram.

The orange sauce for the beets is made with melted butter, flour to thicken and orange juice to make a creamy sauce. Two tablespoons butter, one tablespoon flour and one cup orange juice makes a delicious sauce.

Extra butter should be added to the cabbage for the gaining diet.

The nuts added to the lemon jelly increase the fat calories and are not difficult to digest.

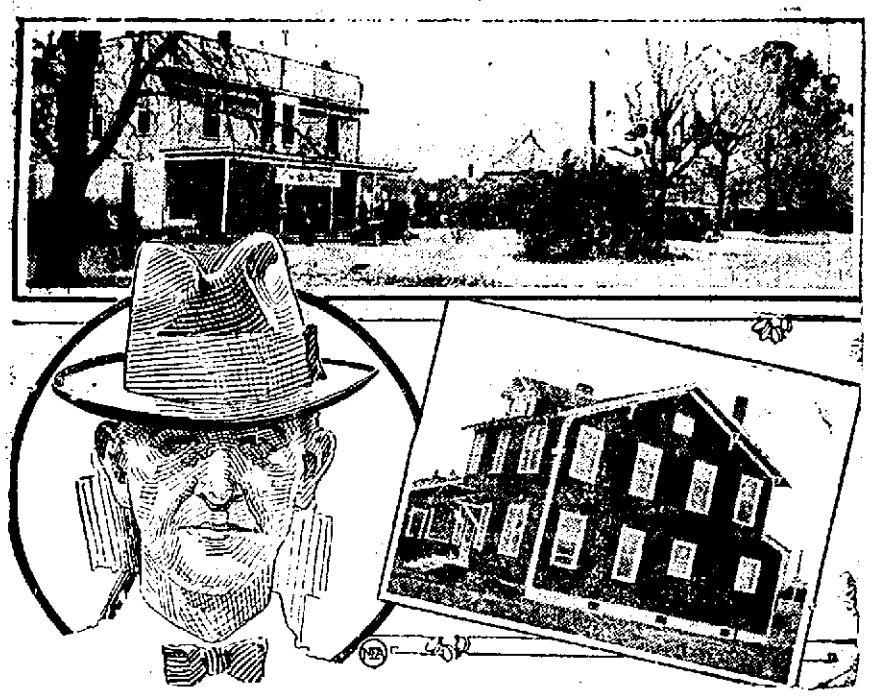
THIS NAN OWNS, BOSSES, AND FATHERS TOWN OF 1800 AND 40,000 ACRE DOMAIN



Above—A street scene in Wilson. Lower left—Lee Wilson, owner and bossof the town. Lower right—a typical Wilson home.

WILSON—Mississippi County, Arkansas; Population 1800; industries: lumber, cotton, wheat; 2 hotels, bank, good schools, etc.

* * *

That's what the atlas says.

But what it doesn't say, and what makes Wilson unique and interesting among cities is this; it is owned, controlled and regulated by one man—Lee J. Wilson.

Over a domain 27 miles long and eight miles wide Wilson reigns supreme.

He is "the cook and the captain bold and the mate of the Nancy brig."

He owns the town. He owns the buildings, and the industries and the railroad and the timber and farm land. He is landlord and boss and, because he owns everything, he is also the law.

Every man in town works for him. Every family rents from him. When taxes are due he pays them all. When improvements are needed he foots the bill.

What He Did

Like a child playing with building blocks he has been able to put a church here and a store there and move people about as he wishes.

And what has he done with his million-dollar toy:

He has built comfortable houses for employes. The rents range from $12.50 to $30. All houses have the same conveniences. Each has electric lights, tub and shower baths, hot and cold water, telephone, truck patch, chicken and chicken yard.

He has built a $75,000 school for his employes' children.

He has established an agricultural experiment station.

He has decreed that every one must work, or he evicted from town.

He has financed college educations for the sons and daughters of his workers.

And now he's building a combination hotel, department store and office building at a cost of $250,000.

And He Owns

Wilson owns:

A saw mill, planing mill, lumber yard, box factory, cotton ginning plant, grain elevator and flour mill.

A department store, filling station, drug store, two hotels and an ice plant.

The Johnsboro, Lake City & Eastern railroad 150 miles long.

Eighteen plantations, producing the raw materials for his industries.

At 57 Wilson has amassed his own fortune, starting as a small mill operator. He's worth $10,000,000.

Where Old Dobbin Still Holds His Own

A forty-horse train will trek the 70 miles between Vulcan and Calgary, Alberta, during Calgary's Annual Stampede, first week in July. The trip will take about four days. The cavalcade recently transported 1142 bushels of wheat over the same route, went on the elevator platform and unloaded with 40 minutes. It's believed to be the longest "team" ever harnessed together. Glen House of Gleichen, Alberta, owns the outfit, and "Slim" Moorehouse of Vulcan, an old-time pack-train driver, will handle the reins.

NEW SUBSTATIONS FOR EXPERIMENTS

Breathitt and Caldwell Counties Centers for Agricultural Testing

Associated Press

LEXINGTON, April 21. Preparations are being made to carry on the work of the two new experiment stations provided for by the last legislature. The new experiment station to be in Eastern Kentucky and the one in Western Kentucky will, according to Dean Thomas Cooper of the College of Agriculture, supplement the work of the present central experiment station now effective and will provide means for carrying on experimental work tending to promote the agricultural interests of the different sections.

The eastern station, in Breathitt county will be known as the Caldwell subexperiment station and comprises a tract of land totaling about 15,000 acres donated to the state by T. C. Robinson of Ky. The new Western Kentucky station will be located on lands in Caldwell county, to be donated to the state, but the exact location of the station has not been announced.

"These two stations lay the foundation for an adequate plan of agricultural development in the state," Dean Cooper said. "This will offer a better opportunity to study those problems peculiar to the various regions and which to study those problems peculiar to the various regions and which are determined by soil and climatic conditions to a great extent.

"The Robinson station will be devoted largely to the work with forestry because it is especially adapted to that work and because reforestation of timber production under private or corporate ownership is one of the vital problems of the mountain district which come under the head of horticulture, orcharding, sheep and goat production, poultry, dairying and production of grasses best suited to the mountain region. This station would prove as useful to forestry and timber production as the experiment station is proving in agricultural development.

The western station, on the other hand will deal with crops totally different problems, for it will be situated in the dark tobacco belt and will study diseases, soil conditions, crops needed for better pastures, etc.

Evangelist Plans "Jazzless" University Town and Health Resort in Ozark Mts.

SULPHUR SPRINGS, Ark., April —A university in winter—A health resort in summer—"Jazzless" the whole year 'round.

That's the future John E. Brown, evangelist and college president, has mapped out for this Ozark Mountain town.

And since he's bought up three-fourths of it, Brown certainly is in a position to dictate how things ought to be run in Sulphur Springs.

In the deal, Brown acquired three hotels, parks, lakes and springs, business property and residence sites.

Town to Be University

Brown, founder and head of John E. Brown College and Siloam Springs, near here, will move the university here.

The hotels will provede dormitory and class-room facilities. In summer, they will house tourists.

But summer or winter, jazz will be taboo. No dancing, no card playing, no drinking will be tolerated.

There will be band concerts, golfing, tennis, swimming, fishing and horseback riding.

The school, while interdenominational and non-sectarian, stands uncompromisingly committed to the Bible. All students are required to study it.

None will be permitted to matriculate who can afford to pay even a part of the tuition costs. It's entirely for poor boys and girls.

All Work

All students work a few hours each day—some in the print-shop, some on the farms, some in the kitchen, some in the tailor shops.

The university fulfills an ambition of Brown's early manhood—to give deserving boys and girls opportunity to gain the education he, himself, was denied.

A score of years ago Brown worked in a lime-stone quarry at 75 cents a day. He professed religion during a Salvation Army revival.

When the evangelists left he was commissioned to open a mission. Since then he's conducted meetings all over this section.

But all the time he's never lost sight of his early dreams.

NEVER FORGOT

It was more than 40 years ago that Knut Hamsun, a Norwegian immigrant, borrowed $40 from a friend in Wisconsin, so he could go to Colorado for his health. The other day that friend received a draft for $40 with interest many times above the usual rate. The young immigrant is now a novelist of world-wide fame. This year he won the Nobel prize.

"ON ACCOUNT"

PART PAYMENTS CONSERVE CREDIT

By this time in the month most of the first of the month bills have been paid in full and most accounts are balanced. The great majority of people and business houses settle their bills promptly. If they did not, there could not and would not be any such thing as credit. Nobody could afford to extend it.

At one time or another, however, nearly everybody finds that obligations pile up beyond the ability to meet them in ordinary course. Somebody has got to wait for his money unless unusual means of raising it are found. Lots of people, under such circumstances, select certain bills they decide can wait another month.

This is not a good plan. In fact it is an unsafe one, because it leads to diliatoriness in making payments. As a rule it is better to pro rate the amount of money in hand among the whole number of creditors paying half or three-fourths of every bill outstanding, rather than eliminating altogether enough of the number to enable you to make full settlement of the remainder.

Those creditors who have to wait are not being treated fairly. Your credit standing with them is being damaged. It would be much better all around for you to make a substantial payment "on account" to everybody you owe money to, thus showing that your intentions are good and that you are doing the very best you can.

Recently a woman depositor entered a Boston bank to make a deposit. She had some bills and checks to deposit, so she procured a deposit slip which required the listin gof bills, specie and checks. She listed her bills and checks in their respective places, but was somewhat in doubt as to what to list under specie. After a few moments' thought she wrote after the word specie "female" and turned in her deposit.—Forbes Magazine.
